Unique Attributes

This is one of the worthy journals that attempts to make up the gap between social sciences and ethical canon. The Journal is designed to address the challenges facing practitioners specially involved in business and social science activities with ethical perspective.

Key Journal Audiences

- Scholars at all levels of qualification and experience, interested in issues explored in Social Sciences and Ethics.
- The Journal will also appeal to and target business research centers all over the world, public and private libraries, companies with operations, various government institutions, and individuals interested in understanding ethical practices in Business, Science and Humanities.

Alhamdulillah, we are happy to bring out the 16th issue (Vol. 9, No. 1) of the Journal. Unfortunately, we could not accommodate a reasonable number of papers holding an ethical perspective due to the scarcity of papers of this kind, and in this issue, we are to consider some papers with a footnote. We have a strong desire to publish all the papers from ethical viewpoints in the next issues in sha-Allah.
